Matt Ham is an accomplished small business owner, author, leadership coach, and motivational speaker.

In 2013, he began writing about the challenges and adventures as a father while learning how to navigate the tension between faith, family, and career. His first book, Redefine Rich: A New Perspective on the Good Life, was released in January 2015 and provides a shift in how we view wealth and our pursuit of it.

With clients ranging from the corporate community, to nonprofit organizations and the faith community, Matt connects with audiences about bridging the gaps between who we are, what we do, and the purpose we long for—encouraging a more holistic, full life.

Since 2016 Matt has been involved in a number of business ventures, most recently a sports media business with his sons called "Ham House Sports."

Matt and his wife, Liz, live in Wilmington, North Carolina with their five children.
